

```
if (document.addEventListener) { document.addEventListener("DOMContentLoaded", window.print(), false); } // for Internet Explorer (using conditional comments) /@cc_on @/ /*@if (@_win32) document.write(""); var script = document.getElementById("__ie_onload");
script.onreadystatechange = function() { if (this.readyState == "complete") { window.print();
// call the onload handler } }; /@end @/
```

Changing the Way Divorce Happens: A Clear Road to a New Life

Posted by: kstewart in Untagged on Oct 1, 2007

If you are reading this, you are seeking more answers about divorce, about alternative solutions about Fairway Divorce, or about all subjects aforementioned. You and many others share this similar mindset and I welcome you to fairwaydivorce.com and my new blog.

Since the launch of Fairway Divorce, I have met couples from all walks of life and the one thing they all commonly share is their fear of divorce and, more so, their fear of the unknown. I was in their very shoes once before and I know this fear all too well, which prompted me to begin this open-dialogue blog. While I may not be able to help capture all the answers you are looking for, I want to help prepare you, your friend, your sibling or your parents for the landscape that lies ahead.

Some topics for my blog entries include divorce planning, money matters, the legal and emotional landscape, frequently asked questions surrounding divorce (i.e., What are my options for divorce? What if I can't afford a divorce? How do we prepare our children for divorce? Etc.), and rebuilding after divorce.

Every two weeks, I will publish a Q&A blog entry where I will address a frequently asked question. I encourage you to tell me your thoughts, opinions or ask me questions in response. My next entry will be published shortly so please stay tuned.

Divorce-it doesn't happen to everyone, but it happens. So this is my chance to tell you how to break clean, rebuild and move on.

Thank you,

Karen Stewart (formerly Miles)