Why Choose Fairway Divorce

Posted by: kstewart in FAQs on Nov 23, 2007

Not long ago, I was speaking to a group of people about Fairway's new divorce paradigm. Although they were unanimously excited by the idea and enthusiastically vocal that it is long overdue, they had difficulty even imagining a softer, less painful, less damaging approach to divorce. Even in these progressive times, the idea of "divorce" still packs a heck of a negative punch.

I understand first-hand because of the hard lessons learned from my own divorce through the traditional system. Though it was difficult to endure at the time, the experience of my divorce has given me a new life purpose: to help others avoid the pitfalls that shell-shocked me into a numbing inability to cope during the ordeal and prevented me from moving practically and proactively toward a solution.

To that end, I developed a solid alternative to traditional divorce—the Fairway Process™. This model recognizes that "justice" and "fairness" are not synonymous. Although the traditional system of divorce may serve the interests of justice, its outcomes are seldom fair.

Where justice penalizes, fairness fosters change.

So why should you choose Fairway Divorce Solutions? Because through this model, it is finally possible to equate "divorce" to new beginnings, new opportunities and healthy transitions.

Fairway Divorce Solutions was founded to serve four primary purposes:

- To protect children from the needless harm they suffer in traditional divorce.
- To give couples a positive, affordable and time-saving alternative to ending their relationships.
- To establish a new standard of civility and common sense for divorce in the 21st century.
- To provide a model for conflict resolution that can expand beyond the world of divorce.
